INTRODUCTION

The Baldy Mountain Retreat has a stunning, 3000 sf custom home with privacy and seclusion. This home sits on 20.6 acres surrounded on three sides by public lands. Located in Southwestern Montana, the heart of world class fishing and hunting country, you have easy access to miles and miles of public lands and also to the Beaverhead, Big Hole and the Red Rock Rivers. The custom home has three bedroom and two full baths, an attached oversized 2 car garage, with a cellar and an attached greenhouse. The residence has an open floor plan with substantial windows to bring in the natural light and to take advantage of the scenic views of the Beaverhead Valley and the Pioneer Mountains. Baldy is the focal point under the big skies of the Montana landscape. The large open concept living area flows from the roomy kitchen with granite counter tops, custom maple cabinets and a propane gas stove - to the large granite covered island containing considerable storage - to the dining area with more large windows that let in natural light, - to the spacious living area - to the small office behind beautiful wood sliding doors. The wide hallway leads to the pantry on the left and a very nicely done laundry room with sink and custom maple cabinets. The full guest bath is next and then two guest bedrooms. The master bedroom is very generous as are the walk-in closet and the master bath with jacuzzi bathtub. The separate shower has a beautiful tile design with a tile covered bench. There is an oversized attached 2 car garage, that includes a cellar and an attached greenhouse. The indoor arena with saddle shop and tack room can be utilized for numerous activities - RV storage, dog training, landscape facility, among others. There are two outdoor arenas, along with horse pens, a horse shelter and a hay shed. This stunning residence, with its 20 acres has a multitude of possibilities, and is within easy access to airports, hospitals, and other amenities. Call for a showing today! MLS# 390945

INVESTING IN MONTANA RANCH LAND

Interest in Montana ranch land as an investment has been strong over the last several years. Throughout Montana, but particularly in Southwest Montana we have seen increased demand for ranches as a safe investment. Making the decision to pursue investing in ranch land can be incredibly rewarding (both personally and financially) but there are a lot of factors that go into investing and owning ranch land. "Ranch" is a general term that can describe a wide range of property from large income producing cattle ranches, smaller recreational properties, fly fishing properties, hunting ranches, or horse properties with just a few acres. All of these definitions of ranch property are in demand in Montana, and are appreciating in value over the long term. However, income producing ranch land is the most stable, and is in the highest demand by investors.

Before buying property in Montana it is important to understand Montana Water Rights. All water in Montana is owned by the State. A Montana Water Right allows you to legally use water in a prescribed manner, but not to own the water itself. Montana's water law is based in the Doctrine of Prior Appropriation - First in Time, First in Right. Water rights are ranked according to the date on which the water was first put to beneficial use. Priority dates dictate the volume and distribution of water from wells, rivers, and streams. Landowners must put the water to beneficial use without waste to retain their right to use Montana's water. Without diversion and beneficial use, there is no water right.

A conservation easement is a legal agreement between a landowner and a land trust that limits the uses of the land in order to protect its conservation values. The landowner retains title to the property. The creation of the conservation easement can qualify as a one-time donation that has tax benefits. The conservation easement runs with the title, meaning that if the property is purchased by a new owner, the conservation easement remains. Land ownership carries with it a bundle of rights—the right to occupy, lease, sell, develop, construct buildings, farm, restrict access or harvest timber, among others. A landowner can give up one or more of those rights for a purpose such as conservation while retaining ownership of the remainder of the rights. In ceding a right, the landowner “eases” it to another entity, such as a land trust. For example, a landowner may give up the right to build additional structures while retaining the right to grow crops.

Landowners looking to sell their property can use conservation easements to protect what future owners are able to do with the property. This typically reduces the marketable value of the property. If the conservation is setup properly, the landowners are able to take advantage of tax benefits associated with the creation and “donation” of the conservation easement. The potential tax benefits of a donated conservation easement are two-fold. First, income tax benefits may exist at the federal level. There may be benefits at the state level as well. However, state property taxes can not be reduced by a donation of a conservation easement in Montana. Second, the conservation easement works as an estate planning tool to reduce estate tax liability. To qualify for a tax deduction, the donation of a conservation easement must be considered a charitable gift by the IRS (Internal Revenue Service). It is strongly recommended that a qualified tax professional review the conservation easement donation to ensure it meets IRS requirements. A tax deductible, charitable donation can only be made to an IRS qualified tax-exempt organization. The donation of a conservation easement must be complete and irrevocable in perpetuity. In order to claim a tax deduction on the donation of a conservation easement the landowner must obtain a qualified appraisal by a state certified appraiser.
