INTRODUCTION

Experience the beauty of Montana, living on this remarkable 30 plus acres in Grasshopper Valley, completed with endless recreational amenities. This stunning 5312 sq.ft. log home boast breathtaking views in every direction. Step inside to find thoughtfully designed layout, a tile entry that leads you into the oversized living room with floor to ceiling windows and a striking river rock massive fireplace that served as a focal point in this living space. A formal dining room with laminate flooring leads to the library room for a cozy sitting area. A well thought out kitchen has lots of work areas, awesome views of Maverick Mountain Ski Area, a large walk in pantry, a prep sink, kitchen appliances and a working wood cook stove sits in the corner. The sunroom is a favorite room to take in all the sun, great for plants , morning coffee, and additional room for entertaining ,plus a 3/4 bath across the hallway. Upstairs you will find the whole area as a Master Suite, that overlooks the living room. Master bath with jacuzzi tub, walk in shower, oversized walk in closet and dual sinks. The other two rooms have historically used as an office, exercise room or craft area. The basement conveys a game room with pool table, wood stove, mechanical room with storage, a full bath, two guest bedrooms (egress) and a family room with a walk out covered patio area. Outside you'll find spacious three car finished garage with a versatile finished room upstairs, ideal for a workshop, office, or dorm area for guests. An RV garage provides ample storage for all your outdoor adventure gear along with your RV or other vehicles. Stay warm during the colder months with a 7 zoned boiler heating system, the river rock fireplace and the wood stove in the basement. Other outbuildings include the wood storage building, small shed and screened in building that you can enjoy the soothing sounds of Dingley Creek flowing though the property. Surrounding by mature trees and showcasing stunning views, this property is a true haven for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts alike. ## INVESTING IN MONTANA RANCH LAND

Interest in Montana ranch land as an investment has been strong over the last several years. Throughout Montana, but particularly in Southwest Montana we have seen increased demand for ranches as a safe investment. Making the decision to pursue investing in ranch land can be incredibly rewarding (both personally and financially) but there are a lot of factors that go into investing and owning ranch land. "Ranch" is a general term that can describe a wide range of property from large income producing cattle ranches, smaller recreational properties, fly fishing properties, hunting ranches, or horse properties with just a few acres. All of these definitions of ranch property are in demand in Montana, and are appreciating in value over the long term. However, income producing ranch land is the most stable, and is in the highest demand by investors.

Before buying property in Montana it is important to understand Montana Water Rights. All water in Montana is owned by the State. A Montana Water Right allows you to legally use water in a prescribed manner, but not to own the water itself. Montana's water law is based in the Doctrine of Prior Appropriation – First in Time, First in Right. Water rights are ranked according to the date on which the water was first put to beneficial use. Priority dates dictate the volume and distribution of water from wells, rivers, and streams. Landowners must put the water to beneficial use without waste to retain their right to use Montana's water. Without diversion and beneficial use, there is no water right.

A conservation easement is a legal agreement between a landowner and a land trust that limits the uses of the land in order to protect its conservation values. The landowner retains title to the property. The creation of the conservation easement can qualify as a one-time donation that has tax benefits. The conservation easement runs with the title, meaning that if the property is purchased by a new owner, the conservation easement remains. Land ownership carries with it a bundle of rights—the right to occupy, lease, sell, develop, construct buildings, farm, restrict access or harvest timber, among others. A landowner can give up one or more of those rights for a purpose such as conservation while retaining ownership of the remainder of the rights. In ceding a right, the landowner “eases” it to another entity, such as a land trust. For example, a landowner may give up the right to build additional structures while retaining the right to grow crops.

Landowners looking to sell their property can use conservation easements to protect what future owners are able to do with the property. This typically reduces the marketable value of the property. If the conservation is setup properly, the landowners are able to take advantage of tax benefits associated with the creation and “donation” of the conservation easement. The potential tax benefits of a donated conservation easement are two-fold. First, income tax benefits may exist at the federal level. There may be benefits at the state level as well. However, state property taxes can not be reduced by a donation of a conservation easement in Montana. Second, the conservation easement works as an estate planning tool to reduce estate tax liability. To qualify for a tax deduction, the donation of a conservation easement must be considered a charitable gift by the IRS(Internal Revenue Service). It is strongly recommended that a qualified tax professional review the conservation easement donation to ensure it meets IRS requirements. A tax deductible, charitable donation can only be made to an IRS qualified tax-exempt organization. The donation of a conservation easement must be complete and irrevocable in perpetuity. In order to claim a tax deduction on the donation of a conservation easement the landowner must obtain a qualified appraisal by a state certified appraiser.
