INTRODUCTION

Looking for privacy, water and a refreshingly new, updated home? Look no further! 11 Upper Greyson Creek Road offers 200+/-feet of creek frontage plus 19 +/- acres for your fishing & hiking enjoyment. Impressively and lovingly remodeled from top to bottom in a 2021-2022 rebuild, this like-new 5 bedroom, 3 bath home has been used as a private residence as well as a popular short term rental. Located in a beautiful setting with mountains, canyons, and privacy galore, you'll love the views along with a spacious, open floor plan. Walk into the ground floor level (walk out basement) and you'll find two large bedrooms, a full bath, plus a game room with air hockey, board games and TV. Head upstairs to discover a spacious open living room, dining area and chef's kitchen with cooking island and bar, perfect for entertaining dinner guests! Views from the large picture windows are simply stunning! Down the hall is a fabulous primary suite with sliding glass doors inviting you outside to a wrap around deck. The primary suite includes a state-of-the-art dream bathroom complete with custom tiled shower, separate deep jetted soaker tub, dual sinks with LED light up faucets, plus two more bedrooms and a half bath down the hall. All closets in the home have been equipped with LED automatic lights which turn on when door is opened. Ample outside deck wraps around from side to back and is great for barbeques, while the firepit is ready for stories, laughs and s'mores! Take off for a four wheeler ride to State Land just down the road or take a hike on the acreage and catch a brook trout in Greyson Creek. Move in and start enjoying your vacation home, vacation rental, retirement home or your forever home! It includes an oversized double car garage with large workshop room in the back, but you can always build an additional shop for all your toys or a barn for your animals because there is plenty of room. You'll love the rural wooded, private feel of this property but you'll also enjoy the close proximity to Canyon Ferry Reservoir, Townsend (15 miles) or Helena (49 miles) or Bozeman (72 miles) for bars, restaurants, shopping, medical services or airports. INVESTING IN MONTANA RANCH LAND

Interest in Montana ranch land as an investment has been strong over the last several years. Throughout Montana, but particularly in Southwest Montana we have seen increased demand for ranches as a safe investment. Making the decision to pursue investing in ranch land can be incredibly rewarding (both personally and financially) but there are a lot of factors that go into investing and owning ranch land. "Ranch" is a general term that can describe a wide range of property from large income producing cattle ranches, smaller recreational properties, fly fishing properties, hunting ranches, or horse properties with just a few acres. All of these definitions of ranch property are in demand in Montana, and are appreciating in value over the long term. However, income producing ranch land is the most stable, and is in the highest demand by investors.

Before buying property in Montana it is important to understand Montana Water Rights. All water in Montana is owned by the State. A Montana Water Right allows you to legally use water in a prescribed manner, but not to own the water itself. Montana's water law is based in the Doctrine of Prior Appropriation - First in Time, First in Right. Water rights are ranked according to the date on which the water was first put to beneficial use. Priority dates dictate the volume and distribution of water from wells, rivers, and streams. Landowners must put the water to beneficial use without waste to retain their right to use Montana's water. Without diversion and beneficial use, there is no water right.

A conservation easement is a legal agreement between a landowner and a land trust that limits the uses of the land in order to protect its conservation values. The landowner retains title to the property. The creation of the conservation easement can qualify as a one-time donation that has tax benefits. The conservation easement runs with the title, meaning that if the property is purchased by a new owner, the conservation easement remains. Land ownership carries with it a bundle of rights—the right to occupy, lease, sell, develop, construct buildings, farm, restrict access or harvest timber, among others. A landowner can give up one or more of those rights for a purpose such as conservation while retaining ownership of the remainder of the rights. In ceding a right, the landowner “eases” it to another entity, such as a land trust. For example, a landowner may give up the right to build additional structures while retaining the right to grow crops.

Landowners looking to sell their property can use conservation easements to protect what future owners are able to do with the property. This typically reduces the marketable value of the property. If the conservation is setup properly, the landowners are able to take advantage of tax benefits associated with the creation and “donation” of the conservation easement. The potential tax benefits of a donated conservation easement are two-fold. First, income tax benefits may exist at the federal level. There may be benefits at the state level as well. However, state property taxes can not be reduced by a donation of a conservation easement in Montana. Second, the conservation easement works as an estate planning tool to reduce estate tax liability. To qualify for a tax deduction, the donation of a conservation easement must be considered a charitable gift by the IRS (Internal Revenue Service). It is strongly recommended that a qualified tax professional review the conservation easement donation to ensure it meets IRS requirements. A tax deductible, charitable donation can only be made to an IRS qualified tax-exempt organization. The donation of a conservation easement must be complete and irrevocable in perpetuity. In order to claim a tax deduction on the donation of a conservation easement the landowner must obtain a qualified appraisal by a state certified appraiser.
